Taft also accused Democratic leaders of staging a "near filibuster" against Kem's resolution, which is aimed at determining whether Clark fully upheld his duty in the conduct of an investigation into alleged irregularities in the August 1946 primary.

That election was the one in which then Rep. Roger C. Slaughter lost his bid for Democratic renomination of Emos Axtell, who ran with President Truman's avowed support, was defeated in the November general election by Rep. Albert Reeves Jr., a Republican.

CAST'S SUCCESSOR TO BE CONSIDERED

Committee To Take Up Question at Meeting July 29.

Marion E. Hinklin, chairman of the Marion County Republican executive committee, said today a meeting of the committee had been called for July 29 to consider applications for appointment as successor to Oscar W. Gast, probate and juvenile judge.

The offices will be filled by appointment by Gov. Thomas J. Herbert, in such appointments the governor usually follows the recommendation of the county executive committee.

Under state law the next judge must be a lawyer.

Judge Gast died in University hospital last Wednesday and funeral services were held Saturday.

SAYS FARMERS WILL NEED AID WITH CORN

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 21—N. E. ... undersecretary of agriculture said today that "if we don't help farmers handle their corn so it will keep well, I think we can expect to see an abnormally large portion of it fed to hogs and cattle this winter."

"The result would be heavy livestock marketings during the winter and early spring, followed by smaller marketings and higher prices next summer," he said in a speech prepared for a conference on conditioning the corn crop, sponsored by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

He said that "in all probability we will have considerable soft corn to deal with this fall," because the lateness of the crop and the possibility of frost before it matures. Soft corn, he added, will mold and spoil if not properly handled.

"Much corn may have to be dried by forced hot air," he said, "but that will take machinery and it will take time to get the proper machines manufactured in adequate quantity and out onto the farms."

"We should start encouraging farmers now to make plans to handle their corn and to place their orders for any equipment which they will need," he added.

U.S. REDS SET AT 5,000,000

Witness Estimates That Number in Action Pushing for Third Party.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, July 21—Walter S. Steele told the house un-American activities committee today that Dr. Frank Oppenheimer and Dr. Lewis Balamuth, wartime experts on atomic power, have taught since at communist schools.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 21—An estimate that there are about 5,000,000 Communists or sympathizers in the United States—all pushing for a "major third party"—was given the house committee on un-American activities today by Walter S. Steele of Washington.

Steele was the first of 14 witnesses scheduled as the committee began a week of public hearings on Communist activities. He testified as chairman of the national security committee of the American Coalition of Patriotic, Civic and Fraternal societies. The coalition is an organization of 84 societies promoting patriotism, Steele said.

He gave this breakdown of Communists and their sympathizers in this country:

1. Upwards of 100,000 card-carrying members of the Communist party.

2. Another 100,000 candidates for party membership.

3. Approximately 4,800,000 members of Communist front organizations.

As for their political activity Steele asserted:

"They are now pushing for a coalition of leftists with the expectation of forming a major third party."

Steele called the front organizations "far more dangerous" than the party.

Before taking the stand, Steele gave reporters a statement saying many of these men are now in the army reserve.

"Their loyalty is to the Soviet Union," the statement declared, giving this quotation from the witness' prepared testimony:

"The most alarming phase of the situation is the manner in which these forces penetrated our armed services, and the fact that our government permits in the United States the functioning of Security Forces Doubled After Death of 2 in Renewed Violence.

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM, July 21—Security forces stood double guard throughout Palestine today after yesterday's wave of violence that left two dead—a British soldier and a Jew—and 16 wounded as a result of widespread clashes between government forces and Jewish extremists.

The Jew—captured during an extremist attack on Haifa installations in which four police were wounded—died of injuries in a Haifa hospital early today.

The British army today ordered 90,000 Jerusalem Jews placed under curfew (house arrest) from dusk to dawn, 7 p. m. to 5 a. m. daily, "until further notice" to counter underground violence.

Comes as UN Leaves

The outburst of violence—climaxed by an attack on a British army division headquarters—came within a few hours after a special United Nations investigation committee left the country.

Police said the attacks apparently were an aftermath to the deportation of uncertified immigrants who arrived here Friday aboard the refugee ship Exodus of 1947.

During the height of last night's disorders Jerusalem was lit up with the blaze of tracer bullets and parachute flares. At one point the building housing the offices where this correspondent was writing was caught in a cross fire of police and extremist bullets.

Running Battle Develops

Authorities said that during one half hour period last night four British policemen, four soldiers, two Arab policemen and four civilians were wounded when two armored cars were blasted by street mines and a running gun battle developed between extremists and police.

At another point attackers raked a Jerusalem police station with small arms fire and a pitched battle took place in an ancient Moslem cemetery.

According to unofficial reports the lone fatality was a soldier killed when a road mine blasted a military truck at Raanana, wounding two others.

Several high ranking British officers narrowly escaped injury when a spray of bullets shattered the windshield of their car.

Marion O.N.G. Company C At Camp Perry for 2-Week Drill

Approximately 30 members of Co. C, 166th Infantry, O.N.G., left from the armory on West Church street at 7 a. m. yesterday by truck to spend two weeks at the National Guard camp at Camp Perry, O., the first since 1939.

The local company, under the command of Capt. Robert Melby, will return on Aug. 3 following the close of the summer camp.

Almost 3,000 Ohio O.N.G. members were at Camp Perry today to start the summer training in small arms fire and military fundamentals, according to a United Press report from the camp.

The report said the guardsmen spent the night in barracks instead of tents as was the case in 1940 when the O.N.G. last trained here. The barracks were left over when the war department returned the camp following its use as a prisoner-of-war camp.

Troops were welcomed by Maj. Gen. Leo M. Kreber, ... of the 37th division; Adj. ... Chester W. Goble and his assistant, Gen. Kenneth Cooper; and Col. Loren G. Windom, commanding officer of the 166th infantry compat team.

Training primarily will be basic, as approximately three-fourths of the troops were youths who never saw combat experience.

The sight of Camp Perry was familiar to most of the officers as they had been members of the O.N.G. prior to World War II when the state unit annually ... camp.

LIQUOR BOUGHT IN GOOD FAITH, EX-CHIEF SAYS

Judge Sohngen Defends Purchases as Proper Deal in View of Conditions.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 21—Large purchases of all types of spirits in the closing months of the administration of former Gov. Frank J. Lausche were declared "made in good faith" today by Supreme Court Judge Robert M. Sohngen, state liquor director at the time of the purchase.

Judge Sohngen's defense of his regime was made in a letter to the present state liquor director, Dale Dunlon, and copies were sent to former Governor Lausche and to Franklin County prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett.

"Purchases * * *," the letter read, "when made by us were made in good faith and in our opinion were sound as of the time made, and in the light of general market conditions in the liquor industry."

Judge Sohngen said his purchases were based upon previous sales experiences in view of the uncertainty of the alcoholic beverage industry which operated under grain restrictions and OPA price controls.

These purchases, he asserted, were "justified in the light of foregoing conditions."

"Ohio Loses Profit"

Gov. Thomas J. Herbert earlier today declared Ohio had lost its chance of making a profit on liquor operations this year "unless the industry cooperates."

The Hamilton man's letter—composed after a conference with Patrick A. Radican, administrative assistant in charge of liquor purchasing when Judge Sohngen was director—asked why the $40,000,000 liquor inventory had not been reduced.

"The reply to this question," his letter continued, "is not that the outstanding orders would account for the increase, because, as I understand your own statements, you do not even contend that more than $15,000,000 was on order, and you or your immediate predecessor had ample opportunity in the ordinary course of business to make any correction in the inventory.

"It just escapes me how you can explain that you could have a turnover of twice the amount of your January inventory between

Dutch Launch Attack On Indonesian Nation By Land, Sea and Air

By The Associated Press

BATAVIA, JAVA, July 21—President Soekarno said by radio tonight the Dutch were attacking his Indonesian republic by land, air and sea. He appealed to the world to force the United Nations security council to take up the issue.

A Dutch communique said Dutch warplanes had attacked Republican airfields in Java and Sumatra because Indonesian fighter planes were ready for action.

The Dutch, declaring they would not attack either the civil population or non-military objectives, were attempting to immobilize harassing anti-aircraft guns at the fields and the Republican air force, believed to number about 40 obsolescent Japanese planes, many in poor repair.

The Republican radio, over which Soekarno appealed, said Dutch artillery had opened fire south of Bandoeng, 100 miles southeast of Batavia. The report said two Dutch planes using rockets attacked Tasik Malaya, in west Java, and that other Dutch aircraft had strafed a Soerakartastraden railway train.

"Police Action"

Acting Governor-General Hubertus J. Van Mook described the Dutch operations as "police action," but the Indonesian news agency Antara reported—before it was closed down—that Dutch planes had bombed and strafed Republican airports throughout Java and that Dutch troops were attacking simultaneously at several points.

Antara quoted Sen. Soedirman Indonesian army commander in Jogjakarta, as saying that sharp fighting was under way at Semarang, north coast city 250 miles east of Batavia, and that the Dutch were attacking not only along front lines "but also in the interior"—a statement that suggested the possible use of airborne troops or parachutists.

"Actually Is War"

"Although there has been no official declaration of war, it is however, clear that the Dutch in reality have declared war upon the Republic," Soedirman was quoted as saying.

He added that "the initial Dutch attacks were received with calmness and discipline" and appealed to Indonesians to rally to defense of the republic.

Closing down of the Antara offices in Batavia cut off the principal source of news here and left a confused picture of the general situation for the Dutch refrained for the moment from issuing any communique on the progress or scope of their operations.

The situation was further confused when the radio at Jogjakarta, republican capital, went off the air suddenly in mid-morning without giving any explanation. Its silence immediately roused speculation that it might have been the target of air attacks.

Reports Heavy Fighting

Before it was shut down, Antara reported heavy fighting under way at Buitenzorg, which is about 30 miles southeast of Batavia, and near Dandoeng, some 70 miles further east.

The agency also indicated that Dutch columns were striking out in an effort to secure the rich sudane of rice country of western Java, but said they were meeting stiff resistance.

Antara said the aerial attacks upon Indonesian airfields apparently were launched with the intention of knocking out the small Republican air force, which consists of about 40 former Japanese planes—mostly in a poor state of repair. Indonesian anti-aircraft was reported to have replied to

115,000 GM Workers Idled by Shortage

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, July 21—Some 115,000 automobile production workers of General Motors Corporation plants began a week of idleness today because of sheet steel shortages.

Industry statisticians estimated the shutdown of all fabricating plants in Michigan would cost the nation 25,000 to 30,000 passenger cars.

Another 65,000 workers in other GM auto plants across the country will be sent home next week because of the steel shortage. Michigan closures included all Fisher body divisions and the Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick and Cadillah assembly plants.

The Michigan unemployment compensation commission instituted "special procedures" and planned to keep some offices open at night to handle an avalanche of jobless benefit claims.

GUN SHOT WOUNDS MAN AT CRESTLINE

Alva Conn Arrested, Says It Was Accident.

Special to The Star

CRESTLINE, July 21—Richard Rowley, 25, of Crestline is in "fair" condition at Mansfield General hospital today suffering from a chest wound receiver early Sunday morning in Crestline.

Alva Conn, 23, also of Crestline, was arrested by police and arraigned before Howard Foltz, acting mayor, following the shooting. According to his statement, Conn and Lawrence Maddy, an uncle of Conn's wife, became involved in a quarrel during a party held at the Conn home, and Conn had ordered Maddy to leave. Later Rowley, who had been at the party earlier in the evening, returned. Conn said that when Rowley started up the front walk, Conn mistook him for Maddy and shot him with a revolver.

Police Chief Paul Kleidinger said no further action would be taken pending further developments in Rowley's condition. Rowley was first taken to Emergency hospital in Crestline, and Sunday afternoon was removed to the Mansfield hospital. He is a veteran of naval service in the Pacific, and was severely wounded in action there.

RANGOON, Burma, July 21—Burmese police held former premier U Saw and 19 of his lieutenants today after killing three of the opposition leader's followers in a gun fight at his home yesterday when they arrested the group in connection with the Saturday massacre of seven council ministers.

U Saw—leader of the Myochit party—was held under heavy guard in the Rangoon central jail while authorities imposed a dusk to dawn curfew on the city.

Authorities said the raid on the former premier's home was led by Ba Maung, inspector general of Burma police. A violent gun fight ensued before U Saw and his followers surrendered. During the battle three Myochit party members were killed.

Officials said a search of U Saw's house unearthed a cache of arms and ammunition.

The Burmese press said nearly 50 persons all told had been arrested as a result of the assassinations of Maj. Gen. U Aung San and six fellow ministers who were cut down by machine gun fire during a meeting of the nine-man executive council in government house Saturday morning. WARNS DANGER OF INFLATION STILL PRESENT

Economic Survey Optimistic in Belief High Level Can Be Preserved.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 21—President Truman said today the nation has surged to a pinnacle of "unprecedented prosperity" but must strengthen its defenses against inflation.

In a special mid-year economic report to congress, the Chief Executive declared that production now is running at a rate of $225,000,000,000 a year, far surpassing anything in history, and added:

"We can place the high production and the high employment that we have today on a firm foundation of enduring prosperity and peace."

But threaded through the 30,000-word document were four c's—corn, coal, construction and commerce overseas—named by Mr. Truman as developments which mean that "inflationary problems may become stronger."

Terming price reductions still necessary in many areas, the President said they must not be swamped in a wave of speculation caused by the forecast of a short corn crop or by a wave of new wage and price boosts pegged to John L. Lewis's coal contract settlement.

"No Real Alarm"

Mr. Truman said there are as yet "no grounds for real alarm nor for general speculative increases in food prices" arising from the forecast of a corn harvest 20 per cent below last year's. But in the event real shortages should develop, the report recommended:

▶Full publicity as to the true farm outlook, perhaps including a campaign for "strict economy" in the use of some foods.

▶Quick planning for conservation, through export controls and possibly by renewing the government's recently lapsed power to control the amount of grain used by distillers and other processors.

Mr. Truman renewed his plea of 10 days ago that coal, steel and other industries forego immediate price increases until they test the real costs of the wage boost won by Lewis' miners.

"Stability in steel prices would be a wise economic policy for this industry as well as for the country," the President declared, whereas increases based on guesses and an "exaggerated interpretation" could "start another price-wage spiral in motion."

"Only One Result"

"Another general surge of price inflation would have only one result—the sharp recession which is to everyone's interest to prevent," Mr. Truman said.

He added that price cuts and boosts in substandard pay rates are still needed as he said they were when the first economic report was made in January but that meanwhile corporation profits have gone on to new record heights.

"It is evident," the Chief Executive asserted, "that in many cases business profits are more than adequate to permit price reductions or wage increases, or some combination of both."

Mr. Truman reassured industry, however, that he does not seek or expect a return to prewar price levels.

Construction — and ... housing — remains ... respects "our domestic problem No. 1," Mr. Truman said.

"Dangers Concealed"

Armed Forces Unification Idea Has Cooked Since World War I

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, July 21—This explains the latest step in national defense.

The senate (July 9) and the house (July 19) have voted to "unify" the army, navy and air force.

This isn't a merger or melting together of the armed services. All it means is getting them to work better together for national defense.

For example:

1. Better team-work in planning.

2. They can save money, time, effort, materials and manpower in buying what they need.

The army, navy and air force will be under their own civilian secretaries and their own commanders. They'll be separate branches of the armed forces.

James Marlow

But all of them will be under a secretary of national defense. That's a new job. It's never existed in this country before.

All this seems natural and useful you might think it would have been done long ago.

True, it's been cooking a long time. But it hasn't been easy to do. And it isn't finished. It should be soon. There's still a slight hitch.

This is it: the senate voted for one bill to unify the services; the house voted for another.

The bills are almost identical. But there are some differences.

The house and senate will try to iron out these differences by setting up a joint committee—called a conference committee—of both houses.

There isn't much time for doing this since congress may quit for 1946 by the end of this week.

It's expected an agreement will be reached quickly. Then the bill agreed to by both houses will be sent to the President for him to sign into law.

He'll sign it promptly because to a large degree, this has been his baby. He's pushed hard for it.

Idea Not New

The idea of unification isn't new. It isn't something which sprang suddenly out of World War II. There's been talk of it since World War I.

Since 1921 at least 60 bills to unify the armed services have been introduced in congress.

A number of studies were made. But until now, no action was taken. Yet, the real drive for unification did spring out of World War II.

That war showed some real weakness in this country's national defense set-up. For example:

The scrambling the army and navy did to get what they needed when the war started.

If they had had a plan ready they could have saved time money, effort, materials.

The failure of the army and navy big shots to agree on unification threw a huge stumbling block in the way of getting the idea through congress.

Generals, Admirals Squabble

The admirals didn't want to wind up being bossed by a general. The generals wanted to be sure they didn't lose ground to the navy.

The air force didn't want to be under the thumb of the army or navy. It wanted to run its own show.

Last year the army came up with one plan for unification. The navy came up with another. They were miles apart.

Congress worked on the plans but, even though President Truman asked for action, the 1946 congress went home without doing anything.

Before this year's congress came here in January, Mr. Truman finally got the army and navy to agree on a single plan.

He gave this plan to congress in February. Since then committees of both houses have held hearings on the unification plan.

The top army, navy, air force and marine commanders went up before the committees and spoke in general favor of the plan.

(With their boss, the President, behind the plan it wasn't likely that any of those commanders were going to come out flatfootedly against it.)

Finally, both commitees okayed the plan, passed the word on to house and senate, and both houses this month voted for it.

Nearly Half of U. S. Employes Are Vets

By The United Press

WASHINGTON, July 21—The civil service commission reported today that war veterans now constitute 42 per cent of the 1,914,708 federal civilian employes, as compared with 15 per cent two years ago.

The total number of veterans employed has remained constant in recent months, with the number of veterans leaving federal jobs being offset by a like number of newly-employed veterans. The commission added that as of May, 808,000 veterans held federal jobs.

It is said that during March, April and May 83,000 veterans left the federal service, 19 per cent of them as result of reductions in force. For all employes, 27 per cent of those leaving were separated because of economy measures.

C. AND O. EXTENDS FOREIGN FREIGHT

By The United Press

CLEVELAND, July 21 — The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company announced today the reorganization and expansion of its foreign freight department to broaden its export, import, intercoastal and coastwise freight business.

Robert J. Bowman, president, said that the expansion will be effective Aug. 1, and that George C. Marquardt, assistant foreign freight agent at Chicago, has been named general manager.

The name of the department will be changed to world commerce department, with headquarters in New York.

Bowman said that with government and UNRRA shipments declining steadily, the expansion is part of the railroad's program to seek the business. There was no need to solicit during and immediately following the war.

The decline in exports which the railroad handled is reflected in shipments handled at Newport News, Va., its largest eastern terminus. At that point, the C. and O. handled 390,144 tons of export freight and 90,681 tons of import freight during the first six months of this year, compared with 427,902 tons of exports and 97,594 tons of imports for the corresponding 1946 period. Increases in government shipments accounted for the decline, Bowman said.

He added that the railroad expects a sizeable increase over the coming months in the movement of commodities from the midwest for the rehabilitation of Europe. These will consist principally of agriculture implements, food supplies, iron and steel products and livestock.

Not Buck Rogers, It's Just Junior On His Jet Bike

By The United Press

... July 21—It's a bird, ... Superman—No it ... jet-propelled bicycle. ... William Tenny and ... demonstrated the ... smoke preview yes- ... fairgrounds. It looks like an ordinary bicycle with a triple airborn mounts on the rear fender and a small tank under the seat. The three tubes in the rear are the jet engines and the tank is for fuel.

The motors blast the bike along at a 25-mile-an-hour clip and when they are "souped up" will push faster than that.

Since propulsion is by jet, just as in aircraft, no drive is used between engines and wheels and there are no be... chains or gears used to turn the wheels.

Gasoline is used for fuel. No oil is needed ... the engines have only one moving part which requires no lubrication.

Each engine delivers a thrust of four pounds and weighs only one pound. They ... started with compressed air and a spark coil.

A tip on how lose to get to the end of ... of ... bicycles—the dyna-jet may also be adapted for use as a heater.

Youth Parley Set To Open

Entire World Represented in Conference Beginning in Norway Tuesday.

By The Associated Press

OSLO, NORWAY, June 21—The first postwar world conference of Christian youth, with delegates from all parts of the globe, will start a 10-day series of meetings here tomorrow.

More than 1,300 young men and women from 60 countries, including the United States, South America and the Far East will attend sessions devoted to such subjects as "The God of the Bible in History," "Confronting Moral Chaos," and "The World's Church."

The opening session will be held in Oslo's "Filadelfia hall," with Alex Johnson, Norwegian minister of the gospel and conference chairman, presiding.

The world conference—whose last previous meeting was held in Amsterdam in 1939—is under the sponsorship of the world's alliances of the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A., the World's Student Christian federation and the World Council of Christian churches.

Of the 400 delegates from the Americas, 265 are from the United States.

To avoid Babylonian confusion, three languages, English, French and German will be the official conference tongues.

The Russian orthodox church will be represented with a Russian delegation from Paris. Some of these emigrants are going to Oslo with official recognition from the patriarchate of Moscow.

Officially the Roman Catholic church is not represented at the conference but the Roman Catholic student organization Pax Romana has sent five Norwegian Catholic observers.

Gen. Bradley To Revisit Scene of Victories

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK, July 21—Omar Nelson Bradley, the "doughboy's general," is going back over there.

In a period of mounting tension in the Balkans, America's most experienced field commander is being sent to Europe and the Mediterranean soon for a six-week inspection of what is left in those regions of the army he once called the greatest in history.

Hal Boyle

This brief leave from his duties as veterans' administrator is believed a preliminary to his taking over the key chief-of-staff post in the American army upon the retirement next year of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, his wartime boss.

It will be the first return in two years for Bradley to the scenes of his victories, and he will find the situation greatly changed. What lies ahead of him on the road back?

He left Europe with the four great allies—United States, Britain, Russia and France—still celebrating the unity of a wartime triumph. He will find Europe now an arena of quarrels in which no two allies agree on what shall be done with the slowly reviving foe.

Neither War Nor Peace

He will find there neither war nor peace—for the peace isn't yet written with the main enemy—but only a twilight compromise, under which ultimate decisions have been postponed from week to week and month to month.

He will find the sureties of the battlefield, where nations and men unite in common fear, replaced by the uncertainties of the diplomatic table, where they often drift apart in mutual distrust or under the tug of separate greeds.

He will find that the superb, combat-trained, million-man American army he led has dwindled to 200,000 men or fewer, an army containing many teen-age youngsters who never saw action, an army that suffers from the evils that have afflicted all occupation armies from pre-Roman times—venereal disease, black marketing and the softening influence of intermingling with foreign civilians in a foreign culture.

One Combat Unit

He will find in this remnant American army at least one unit that can strike with wartime precision and power — the Mobile Constabulary force built up by his old lieutenant, Maj. Gen. Ernie ("Old Gravel Voice") Harmon, tank battle veteran of Sicily, Italy, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

Bradley undoubtedly will gather secret information that will be reflected in future American military planning. There would be no other real purpose in his going. But along his journey also will be many shrines of memory he helped make famous in the second World War—Hill 609 in Tunisia, Troina in Sicily, St. Lo in Normandy, the Ardennes in Belgium, the Siegfried line and the Rhine in Germany.

But he probably won't get to visit the river Elbe area, where they will find it hard to understand stand this tall schoolteacherish-looking man with the kindly face who has always maintained perfect discipline without ever raising his voice.

Even today few Germans realize that he is the man who contributed most in the field to their defeat on the western front. There are a lot of captured German generals, however, who know him well and respect his as perhaps the outstanding tactician of the war.

"Slave" Owner Near Collapse

Woman Found Guilty of Enslaving Maid; Husband Freed.

By The United Press

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 21—Former Boston socialite Mira Elizabeth Ingalls was on the verge of a nervous collapse in San Diego county jail today following her conviction on charges of keeping her Negro maid in slavery for more than 30 years.

Mrs. Ingalls was convicted Saturday by a federal court jury which failed to reach a verdict on a similar charge against her husband, Alfred Wesley Ingalls, former Massachusetts legislator.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Betty Marshall Graydon said that Ernest A. Boyer, assistant U. S. attorney in charge of prosecution in the case, planned to recommend that Ingalls not be tried again.

They were accused of enslaving Dora Jones, 58, by threatening her with prosecution for an affair with Mrs. Ingalls' first husband. Theirs was the first slavery trial in California since Civil war days.

"Just One of Family"
Their defense was that Dora was treated like one of the family and wanted no salary. They set up a trust fund for her and gave her liberal gifts of money, they said.

Defense Attorney Clifford Fitzgerald said that shortly after Mrs. Ingalls' conviction a physician had to be summoned to her jail cell to administer a sedative.

She was remanded to jail after her $2,500 bail was cancelled.

Fitzgerald said he expected to submit a motion tomorrow or Wednesday for a new trial, based on Judge Jacob Weinberger's definition of slavery in his charge to the jury.

To Rule on Motion
Judge Weinberger indicated he would rule on the motion when Mrs. Ingalls appears for sentence July 29.

Fitzgerald said that Ingalls also had "gone all to pieces from worrying about his wife."

Mrs. Ingalls showed no emotion when the verdict was read but her husband made an impassioned plea to save her from a night in jail.

"I urge in the interest of mercy and golden rule that the court allow my wife to remain on bail pending a new trial," he said. "I urge with every fiber of my being that you allow this woman to go on living. I want to take care of her."

Earlier, Fitzgerald had warned that a jail sentence probably would result in her death since she had been in poor health.

The jury reportedly reached its verdict on Mrs. Ingalls in the first 10 minutes of deliberation but did not announce it until two hours and 13 minutes had elapsed.

War or Peace, Slump or Boom, Solons' Bean Soup To Be Warm

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 21—The boys are about to wind up their (I hope), head for home Saturday night with no [illegible] stay away until next year It'll take some of [illegible] their tempers back under control

[illegible] to say whether this has been a good congress, [illegible] certainly had

There were no list[illegible] of the name, but [illegible] then there [illegible] with a smile [illegible] two shots at [illegible] ber of Ohio, in [illegible] way. His mark[illegible] ey was bad [illegible] e decided in their [illegible] w scom—even as you and I—to postpone their building program another year, or until prices come down. Their plans to turn the two legislative chambers into modernistic, bleached wood sanctums which look in the architect's drawings something like cocktail lounges will gather dust a while [illegible]

$80 000 for Bean Soup

The senate did decide, however, to spend $80 000 on its bean soup. This soup these many years has been carried by the bowlful up the stairs from the kitchen in the cellar and hence has been common when passing senatorial gullets. The restaurant will be remodeled, with the kitchen on the same floor as the dining room. Rep Marion Bennett of Mo, still is unhappy about the hardness of the congressional chairs. He claims they put his feet to sleep, but his colleagues have taken no action I guess he'll have to bring his own pillow to work.

On the expense side, the senators are pondering the advisability of an official photographer to take their pictures — pretty—so they won't be seen in the newspapers with their mouths open. The representatives are thinking about providing themselves handsome canes to fit their wallets, saying "I am a congressman." These ought to come in handy in arguments with traffic cops.

The leadership says it is dead certain to close up shop Saturday night. The house of representatives is under control, because no member can make a speech without the chairman holding a stopwatch on him. Things are different in the senate.

Senators Like Washington

Some senators (who like Washington summers) declare they are ready to sit indefinitely or until the agriculture department gets that disputed $100 000 000 for soil conservation. Some other senators—Republicans every one—are demanding the senate investigate the vote fraud case in Kansas City.

The Democrats are holding back on this one. And when a senator holds back he does so by taking a long drink of water and making a speech of 10 or 15 hours on some other subject. This is known as the filibuster. Looks like we may have one beginning tonight.

It's all right with him says Sen Kenneth Wherry of Neb, the Republican whip. He can listen as long as anti-investigators can talk and he intends to hold the senate in session 24 hours a day, if necessary to wear down their larynxes.

This, in other words, is going to be an exciting and confusing week on Capitol Hill, but then it's always that way when you're trying to pack for a vacation.

SUBMIT LABEL FOR FOREIGN GIFTS. Former congressman from North Dakota John Baer a cartoonist and Rep Leo F Allen of Illinois stand on the Capitol steps with the emblem submitted by the former for House approval in connection with a bill introduced by Allen. The measure proposes labeling all goods donated by the U S to the relief of war-torn countries. Indelible markings would show their origin, destination and unsuitability.

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN M.D.

Infection in Chest Walls

Sometimes after a severe bout with some germ-caused disease the patient will develop an infection or abscess of the lining membrane of the chest walls. This is called empyema. Depending on its severity, larger or smaller amounts of fluid and pus collect within the chest cavity.

In almost every case, empyema develops as a complication of some other disorder, especially one which has been long-drawn out and difficult to control.

Empyema occurs particularly as an aftermath of pneumonia. It may however occur as a result of chest wounds or follow such contagious diseases as influenza, scarlet fever, measles, typhoid fever, and tuberculosis. Disorders within the abdomen such as an abscess below the diaphragm or abscess below the liver may also be responsible. Such germs as pneumococcus, staphylococcus, streptococcus and tuberculosis organisms are most often responsible for the infection.

The condition as a rule may be diagnosed by the fever and other symptoms it produces, together with an examination by a physician which reveals fluid in the chest cavity. Of course the X-ray is also most helpful in confirming the diagnosis.

Empyema may be treated in a number of ways, depending upon what germs have produced it.

According to Dr. Thomas J Kinsella, of Minneapolis in treating empyema it is important to keep up the patient's nutrition with a well-balanced diet in order that he may be able to overcome the infection if possible. Some method is employed to get rid of the fluid and pus which accumulates. This may be a simple one such as tapping out with a syringe and needle. Sometimes, the chest cavity is washed out after the fluid is withdrawn.

A tube may be passed into the chest cavity so that the fluid may be drawn out. Or an aspirating penicillin or sulfonamide preparations may be introduced. Sometimes, what is known as open drainage is used. That is an operation is performed and the fluid is removed.

When the fluid is withdrawn from the chest cavity using a needle and syringe it is possible to determine by examination of the fluid what germs are responsible for the infection as well as the extent of the infection within the chest cavity.

This method of treatment seems to get the best results in the infection in children and in the treatment does not bring prompt results, drainage through a tube is as a rule instituted. This method has the advantage of not requiring repeated drainage of the chest wall. It makes complete healing possible after the fluid is removed and penicillin solution may be injected within the chest cavity, thus overcoming the infection.

Empyema does not occur as often nowadays as it did in times gone by because with penicillin and the sulfonamide drugs pneumonia infections are more quickly eliminated.

The sheriff's office was called Sunday to investigate a breakin at the Yost restaurant at the corner of Fourteen street and route 30-S. The story behind the switchboard

The switchboard is the hub of all telephone communications. Before a telephone can function, it must be connected to a central office switchboard. Our present facilities cannot accommodate all the telephones requested by those on our waiting list.

We have ordered new switchboard equipment, but nation-wide demands exceed manufacturers' production capacities for months to come. Meanwhile, we must use our present facilities to serve as many as possible.

PILES
ARE NEVER "MILD"
DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids) as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a mild ailment, especially when not giving any pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formation without tendency to heal themselves; instead, they are likely if neglected to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting, predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its rundown tired feeling and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only permanent relief — written guarantee. My method produces little or no discomfort, does not require the use of knife or drugs, and seldom is the patient required to lose any time from work or other duties. Why not call and learn of this method? The examination is free.

Seam Busters

STEEL mills running at full capacity can't catch up to the nation's demand for steel; the scheduled vacation taken by coal miners early this month and strike uncertainty occurring at the same time are blamed for a General Motors shutdown; steel can't be obtained in large enough quantities because of minor disturbance in the coal supply.

Automobile production can't catch up to demand. House construction can't catch up to demand. Every township, county and state needs new roads. Public and private buildings are in demand. The meat supply can't catch up to demand. There is a shortage of corn. There is a shortage of skilled labor and skilled learners to do the nation's work. With few exceptions, everything the United States needs is still too scarce for comfort, meaning it is scarce enough to inflate the price. This is so despite an enormous increase in production capacity and a working force of more than 60,000,000. Why?

There is no single answer, but among several answers one needs more attention than it's being given. In 1940 the estimated number of persons in the national labor force was 53,299,000—52.7 per cent of the population over 14. Since 1940, the labor force has risen to more than 60,000,000, presumably a larger percentage of the population, though up-to-date census reports are lacking. But since 1940 the demand for everything the labor force produces has increased enormously. Furthermore, Europeans and Asiatics are competing with American consumers for American products.

It adds up to this: That the United States underestimated the demand that would be made on its productive resources. Too many of its citizens became so busy looking on the gloomy side that they forgot to notice that Uncle Sam was busting out at the seams. They assumed their favorite uncle had quit growing. They sold the United States short.

A Job Well Done

RESIGNATION of Robert P. Patterson as secretary of war concludes an outstanding career of government service.

A federal judge, Patterson became assistant secretary of war in 1940 when the Army was rapidly expanding. In the war years he handled tasks of tremendous importance with efficiency and dispatch, attracting the attention of Harry S. Truman, then a senator. In September, 1945, when Henry L. Stinson resigned as war secretary, President Truman didn't have far to seek for a successor.

Since that time Mr. Patterson has been occupied with the Army's postwar problems, chief among which is the armed services unification plan. Now that this is well on the way to becoming law, Mr. Patterson feels his task is accomplished. The nation wishes him well on whatever tasks he undertakes in private life.

Poor Land, Poor People

ILLINOIS' Little Egypt, comprising 16 counties near the confluence of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, once was one of the most fabulously fertile sections of the nation. However, failure to control erosion and floods has sent its rich soil churning down the muddy rivers.

In a survey of Little Egypt, economists find that 77 of every 1,000 residents are receiving some type of public assistance, compared with a state average of 32. In one county the ratio was 150 per 1,000. With a view to reclaiming this land, the state has allocated $25,000 for an investigation and its agricultural station has conducted some encouraging demonstrations. Agronomists say part, but not all, of Little Egypt probably can be made fertile again.

What has happened to Little Egypt is happening on a far vaster scale. The millions of dollars of loss incurred in the recent Mississippi floods doesn't take into account the thousands of tons of soil swept away, and that was the most valuable item lost. Its value cannot be computed in dollars. Until a bold conservation program is set up, these floods will recur. A land that can't control its flood waters eventually will be a poor land.

Dunkerque in Retrospect

THE story of the great evacuation at Dunkerque in 1940 doesn't diminish as time makes it possible to view the operation in perspective. Prior to its accomplishment, any military expert would have called the evacuation of 300,000 impossible. Even the figure of 45,000 seemed optimistic, for it's a truism of military tactics that a retreating force is virtually defenseless when caught astride water. After Gettysburg, had Lee's retreating army been engaged by fresh troops while fording the Potomac, the story of the Confederacy's fall would have been shorter.

But the British, by hurling every available sloop, yacht, trawler and speedboat into the breach, brought home their battered army. At the time there were some who scoffed at Dunkerque as a sorry kind of victory, but it was a victory in the sense that it salvaged the army that one day was to face Rommel at El Alamein. And it proved that the will to come through in the clutch can sometimes contravene military maxims.

Our Military Problem

By MARK SULLIVAN

Need for Universal Training Seen in Report.

WASHINGTON, July 21—We know now that this session of congress will do nothing about universal military training. But we know also that mere inaction is not an answer to the problem. It is not even an affirmative expression of judgment; it is a putting off of judgment.

If many members of congress find it difficult to arrive at judgment, which more so does the ordinary citizen. About universal military training, as about a score of other issues important and disquieting, the citizen hears contending voices, receives fragments of information by press and radio, but he is baffled by the impossibility of piecing all these together and forming a judgment of his own. The more sensible and conscientious the citizen, the more he is disquieted by the difficulty, the practical impossibility, of arriving at a decision for himself.

Many Citizens Undecided

The recognition by average citizens that they do not know the answers is at once wholesome yet disquieting. So-called public opinion polls undertake to say, in exact figures and percentages, what is the judgment of the American people about issues so complex that they baffle experts.

In these polls one is impressed by the proportion of the persons polled who answer "don't know." The proportion who thus candidly affirm their inability to have confident conclusions tends to increase, so I recall from casual observation of polls, and I hope I am right. They may contribute more to accurate pictures of American thought than the larger numbers who, responding to questions that frustrate experts, answer confidently "yes" or "no."

Many persons must wish occasionally that there were some way of bringing about dependable judgments, some process that would at once include completeness of information, sound thought and freedom from self-interest or bias. This has been attempted in the case of universal military training. President Truman—possibly baffled as much as ordinary citizens are, but under official obligation to have a judgment and take a position on it—appointed an Advisory Commission on Universal Military Training.

Choice of Compton Praised

As chairman of the commission Mr. Truman named one of the country's most distinguished scientists, Dr. Karl T. Compton of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Considering the place the atomic bomb has in the military problem, selection of a chairman from the field of science had convincing weight. Other members are high in important fields: Harold W. Dodds, president of Princeton university; the Rev. Thomas A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown university; Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric; Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to Russia; Samuel I. Rosenman, who was an intimate adviser to President Roosevelt; Dr. Daniel Poling, editor of "The Christian Herald."

The judgment of such a group, considering their official responsibility and the study they put upon the problem, might reasonably be accepted by average citizens, and in many cases no doubt was. But the crowding of many issues and exciting events arising out of them may have deprived many persons of thoughtful reading of the Commission's report.

Grim Warning

The report was unanimous on all points. In a single austere sentence it set down what may be accepted as the final word about the nature of any future war: "It is entirely possible that the first day of the attack would result in the crippling or destruction of a dozen of our largest cities, the elimination of our most essential production facilities."

If any have supposed that much of the talk about the nature of a future war sounds like the comic strip fantasies of Superman and Buck Rogers, they will be sobered to read in this report about placing strategic factories underground, "sheltered with great thicknesses of concrete, lead, or protective material."

The report spoke of universal military training as an "urgent military necessity," and said, "We have no desire to sugarcoat this fact." Any attempt to avoid facing the issues raised by proposed military training would be, the report said, "an invitation to disaster."

Authoritative Report

The commission's specific recommendations were for six months basic training for all young men upon reaching the age of eighteen, and either an additional six months of advanced training or special study in college courses approved by the armed services. The entire program of training to be controlled by a three-member board, two civilians and one from the armed services.

Allowing for differences about details of training, any citizen or member of Congress seeking to make up his mind about the basic issue would have difficulty in finding a more authoritative or in any respect better source of judgment than this report by President Truman's commission. The possibility which this report aims to guard against is not diminished by the course the world is taking before our eyes.

Six Month Vacations

Twice-A-Year Coming?

Employes of a Chicago advertising agency are to be given a year's vacation with pay.

Annually?

Even Petrillo couldn't complain of those working conditions.

Yes sir, the trend today is toward higher pay and longer vacations. The former is necessary to pay for the latter.

Time was when a week's vacation, and that without pay, was regarded as the ultimate in employment attractions. Nowadays, anything less than a month is considered an unfair labor practice.

In fact, most people have come to look upon their job merely as a place to rest between vacations.

Maybe I'm just old-fashioned. But somehow I like it better when we had shorter vacations and longer to look forward to them.

Army Air Forces' 40 Years

Started With 2 Enlisted Men in 1907.

THE fortieth anniversary of the Army Air Forces will be celebrated in August of this year. The beginnings were humble indeed—in 1907 two enlisted men of the Signal Corps were delegated to work on the use of the airplane for what was then considered its primary military purposes: reconnaissance.

Attitudes through the years are interesting to review. James M Cox in his autobiography admits that though he was running a newspaper in Dayton, he didn't consider reports of flights by the Wright brothers worth following up till word came that a representative of France was in the city to investigate the matter. In 1915 Orville Wright predicted that the airplane would be a great instrument to prevent war "by making the cost prohibitive."

After World War I, there was a brief period when amateur aviation flourished without regulation, and apparently, without many mishaps. Mechanics at old McCook Field, near Dayton, built small planes powered with motorcycle engines and took short hops about the country, landing in convenient cow pastures.

No Preparedness

Surprisingly, even after the exploits of the Air Service in the war (1917-18) little attention was paid to air preparedness. The case for the development of civil and military aviation was stated convincingly in "A Bargain in Preparedness" by Samuel Taylor Moore published in Harpers for May, 1924, and available in libraries everywhere. The point was made that expenditure of only a few million dollars a year for research and plane production and flight training would keep our aviation industry modernized and our fliers prepared for civilian aviation and national defense. After 23 years that article reads, in the words of an official of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, "as if it had been written yesterday."

True, today's attitudes seem more realistic than the apathy of the twenties. Expenditures for research aeronautics now take far more than the paltry millions Moore called for. Nevertheless, there is the constant need to question our thinking, lest we be as blind to developments no more advanced now than aviation was in 1924.

In research the Army Air Forces—as well as the Navy and civilian aviation—have facilities and programs that exceed the wildest dreams of 40 or even 23 years ago. The NACA, an official body established in 1915 to represent the armed services, civilian aviation, science, and the aviation industry, had a limited amount of research at Langley Field in 1924. That year the NACA published its first study of jet propulsion—but the speeds prevailing and the materials available made jet power impracticable then.

Three Laboratories

Now the NACA has three large laboratories—one at Cleveland for engine research; one at Ames, Calif., for service to the West Coast aviation industry; and the great Langley Memorial Laboratory in the east. The research programs, of necessity concentrated on immediate usefulness during the war, are now pointed to the future, with particular emphasis for defense on turbine engines, jet propulsion, and speeds approaching or exceeding the velocity of sound, and on safety, convenience, and economical comfort for civilian aviation. At the NACA annual display of progress last month, in the "silent plane" which makes only a gentle swishing sound in flight was noted particularly for its promise of turning close-in airports into good neighbors.

Silent flight may seem to have little bearing on the air forces, but the progress of the Army Air forces and of civilian aeronautics is closely related, and for peacetime aviation quiet planes are important. The conquest of noise, a product of research, augurs well for the future of the Air Forces.

Guam Gets First U.S. War Payments

By The Associated Press

GUAM — Nearly three years after this key military base was rewon from the Japanese, the United States has made its first payments to Guamanians for deaths and injuries during the occupation.

Vice Adm. Charles A. Pownall, naval governor, presented the first two payments. A maximum of $4,000 went to the widow of a Yona villager executed by the Japanese. The other was a $2,187 payment to an Agat villager for injuries.

Words of the Wise

With regard to one's work the desirable feeling is always to expect to succeed and never to think you have succeeded. — Thomas Arnold.

MacArthur, McCormick, Taft

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON, July 21—In the course of his gloriously phony "vacation" tour of the ranges where the delegates pasture, Governor Thomas E. Dewey has made considerable progress, without exactly stampeding any large herds of the desirable and useful animals he has been hunting. He is far and away ahead in the contest for the Republican presidential nomination. Yet it is still worth noting one or two risks he has still to run, before he can build up his own delegate herd to the point of undoubted victory.

First and least important, there are plenty of signs on Capitol Hill today that such senators as Kem of Missouri, and a good many influential representatives, do not enjoy having the political livestock back home auctioned by others while they are away in the big city. This was of course inevitable, despite the great care that Dewey's staff took to clear his visit to each state with all its absent potentates.

On Tokyo Horizon

A much more serious threat on the horizon may be discerned in the direction of Tokyo, where General Douglas MacArthur reigns in power that would have been envied by any mikado in history. The irritation of local potentates, above noted, will naturally assist the stop-Dewey movement which the supporters of Senator Robert A. Taft are now almost openly touting. But the cooperation of MacArthur would give such a move the kind of solidity and substance it now rather markedly lacks. And MacArthur has been saying some rather odd things lately, to visitors who have eagerly reported his words in Washington.

Favorable To Taft

To one such visitor, for example, he indicated considerable sympathy for the Taft candidacy, remarking that Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan ought to have backed Taft in 1940, instead of supporting MacArthur as an alternative. Another earlier earlier visitor returned to the Taft camp from Tokyo with an ostensible message to the effect that MacArthur was for Taft, and that although his own job was in the Far East, he was not averse to helping Taft in any way he could.

These reports must of course be given a substantial discount, like all such reports in political matters even when first hand. Yet they have a special interest, if taken in conjunction with the recent behavior of the grand panjandrum of extreme Republican conservatism, Colonel Robert R McCormick of Chicago. Colonel McCormick and Governor Greene are the joint satraps of Illinois. Until recently, McCormick's newspaper beat its blatant drum for MacArthur for president, first last and always. Meanwhile Greene gave signs of hankering for favorite-son recognition.

Now, however, a less uncompromising note has crept into "The Chicago Tribune" editorial pages. McCormick is now for MacArthur first and Taft second. There is also some reason to believe that the distinguished Governor of Illinois might be tempted to sink his claims to recognition at the convention by the promise of a more substantial reward. The secretaryship of national security is said, in fact, to seem decidedly attractive to him.

Return Likely

Put these scraps of evidence together. And it begins to seem at least conceivable that MacArthur will return from Tokyo, some time during the next year, for a sort of imperial tour of the United States. The imperial tour will be employed as the stimulus for a "spontaneous" Mac-Arthur-for-President movement. A MacArthur delegation will be formed in Illinois. Delegates will be sought in other states where MacArthur has appeal, such as Wisconsin. And these MacArthur delegations, by careful pre-arrangement, will go to Taft on the second ballot, counter-balancing Dewey's inevitable second ballot gain.

It is the kind of political strategem which has not been unheard of in the American past, and has worked before. It needs only MacArthur's co-operation to be tried this time; since it is obvious that the Taft camp would be delighted and that McCormick actually has something of the sort in mind. Whether MacArthur will in the end co-operate is of course a very open question. And since the American past was very different from the American present, it still remains to be seen whether this sort of stunt can be worked successfully under modern conditions.

10,000 Beheaded By Nazis in Two Years

By The Associated Press

BERLIN — More than 10,000 German men and women were executed by the axe in the last two calendar years of the Nazi regime, documents of the Reich Justice ministry reveal.

The executions did not include those under military law.

Whereas 49 death sentences were handed down in Germany during the economic crisis year of 1923, two decades later 10,071 persons were beheaded in 1943 and 1944.

There were 21 execution points scattered throughout Germany. The two most used were in the Ploetzensee and Brandenburg prisons, both in Berlin. All death sentences handed down by the Nazi Peoples Court, which tried Germans accused of being spies for foreign powers or piloting against the Nazi state, were carried out there. In 1943, 447 persons were beheaded in Brandenburg and the following year, 916.

The records said eight to 20 seconds were required for beheading by the axe.

Daily Bible Thought

If we worry and fear and anticipate the worst we must learn that all that is required of us is to do our best, our very best and then leave the result with God. We must trust and obey Him, because His plans will prevail: "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, but we are not saved."—Jer. 8:20.

Song of Taxes

Wading through the taxes,
Oh, what jolly fun!
Cereals and axes
Fishing rod and gun . . .
Taxes on your lodging,
Taxes on your keep,
Taxes on your postage,
Taxes while you sleep!

II

Fighting through the tangle
Oh what vast delight!
Socked from every angle—
Target day and night;
Taxes on a cold drink,
Taxes on a hot,
Taxes on a new sink,
Icebox, stove and pot!

III

Taxes fast aborning . . .
To the cleaners, boys!
Taxes without warning
On your pains and joys;
Taxes when you're phoning,
Taxes when you ain't;
Hear the country groaning,
Using language quaint!

IV

Hit by harpoons many,
Raked both fore and aft;
Searching for each penny,
Driven nearly daft;
Legislators spending
With a mood so gay,
On a spree unending
While you pay and pay!

V

Tax on baby's rattle,
Tax on junior's tent,
(See the solons battle
For your last red cent!)
Tax on smokes for popper,
Tax on mommer's frock . . .
Roll 'em through the hopper,
Sock and sock and sock!

VI

Life's a bowl of worry—
Life's a dish of care,
Life's a sad, sad story
Getting in your hair;
Tax on cradles growing—
Hearse tax—see it spurt!
Still where you are going
You won't need a shirt!

Show World Epic

"Life With Father" has closed after seven and half years, breaking all long run records. It grossed nearly six million exclusive of five million on the road. Which makes "Buck" Crouse out of Kansas City, one of the top money men of all times in show business. It couldn't have happened to a nicer guy, or one who had roughter travels. We remember "Buck" when he blew in from the west and came to work on the New York Globe, about the same year we did. Together with Bill Chenery, Wesley Stout, Morrell Anderson, Ed Durling, Ray McCaw and [illegible] McNutt. Strangely enough this whole group left the Globe almost in one squad.

Out of this bunch, two men, Anderson and Crouse were destined to be great names in the theater. Anderson got going at once, after a brief stay, but "Buck" didn't seem bound anywhere in particular, least of all in the amusement world.

* * *

He was among those ditched when the Globe suspended and the next 15 or more years found him doing columns, writing books on Currier and Ives, playing plenty of poker and "red dog," press agenting for the Theater Guild and wondering if New York was all he had pictured back home. Then came the perfect alliance with Lindsay and the vault to the heights. Incidentally the night "Life With Father" opened, Buck was none too hopeful and even on the second night we found him apologizing and saying it gets better in the next act."

Furling the Sails

By TRUMAN TWILL

A tabloid-sized page of women's fashion illustrations had been torn out by someone and left on our desk. The illustrations caught our eye from time to time as we began another day's cheerful round of playing newspaperman—scissoring, pasting, grinding out the grist for the dear readers.

The illustrations were a reminder that it has been a long time since the bad old days when women were made to look like frumps by a gang of Parisians with a cruel sense of humor. [illegible] the femme fatale in the long plaid coat, for example. She looked like an amateur theatrical version of a lady spy with dirty work afoot on the Riviera during the aftermath of World War I.

Or get the chick in what was labeled the tapered silhouette. "It wraps in cocoon style with a carelessly soft top," blubbered the blurb. "cut it out, you're mussing my hair. Although each quaint illustration labeled "The New Look" was another labeled "Old Style." The old-style fashions showed women looking vaguely the way women look they they are attractive. That is to say looking like women, not cookies. That should have been a clue, but we were too busy mulling over the irony of fashion.

It took women a long time to get out of the clutches of fashion designers with a cruel sense of humor. Those geezers made chumps out of a lot of females, also the chowderheads who helped pay the bills. They draped the female shape in gunny-sacks, Hooverettes, Mother Hubbards, skirts that dragged the floor, skirts that were practically negligible.

They exposed females with piano legs, bow legs, bowed legs, gnarled legs and fat legs to ridicule by making skirts too short. They outraged the lives of the cuties with oo-la-la legs by concealing them in yards of cloth that looked like badly furled sails on a tramp windjammer.

They called it fashion, but it was a lot of nonsense, darned expensive nonsense at that. Finally, the women themselves caught on. They revolted against being made to look like goons instead of women. With nothing much to go by them while the fashion designers were doing something useful, for a change, during the war, women wore the best-designed clothes they ever had. For once in a lifetime, it was all right for females to look their best, instead of their worst.

We wish the breeze had never flipped over the page, to reveal a story on the other side containing the date 1947. We did a double-take. This wasn't about the bad old days at all. This was about the brave new world. The illustrations showed what's in store for women this fall. But "The New Look" is still straight from the Harding administration, when women's clothing reached a zenith of ugliness, and there's not a thing anyone can do about it.

Skirts are headed back for shoetops. Waistlines are going to be made to seem what they aren't. Shoulders are going—but who cares? The more styles change, the more they're the same silly guff.

Old-Time Winters May Be On Way Back, Says Weatherman

By The United Press

WASHINGTON, July 21—This seems like a good time to think old-fashioned winters—colder and snowier—may be coming back, Ivan B. Tannehill, chief of the weather bureau's research division, reported today.

Tannehill has been paid for years to talk about weather. Tannehill observed trends toward warmer weather which has been noted and apparently is being reversed.

Tannehill said, probably remembering when he boasted about how much colder it was in the old days.

"Of course," he added, "your memory may have been like mine which said that the snow was up to our knees now because it's only up to our shoulders when he was a boy."

Tannehill said that weather bureau studies, on the basis of figures available, show that the temperature started to rise about 75 years ago.

"Now it seems to be going the other way. The turn of the trend came about 1940," he said. "This may be the beginning of another cycle."

Tannehill said the cold, wet and windy spring suffered by the midwest may have been caused by sunspot activity, which in May was the highest observed in the last century.

While meteorologists aren't certain of the effects of sunspots on weather, there does seem to be some tie-in, he said. Sunspot experts at the national bureau of standards, however, insisted there is "no recognized relationship."

Spring Started Late

Whatever the cause, Tannehill's records showed that spring was a month late in Kansas, Nebraska, and Missouri, and that there were freezing temperatures as late as May 29. Rainfall in Iowa and Missouri, which are waterlogged by heavy floods, was about four times normal.

Source of the bureau's figures are the 415 regular bureau offices and information gathered from all over the world through the international meteorological organizations.

Using a standardized code, the U. S. bureau exchanges information with Northern Hemisphere countries and South America. The chief trouble is not "iron curtains" against weather data, but the fact that in many vast areas like the Mongolian desert there are few if any weather stations.

The U. S. Army contracted for about 431 million pounds of dehydrated foods in the course of World War II.

Best Way To Ditch Plane Sought by Army

By The Associated Press

DAYTON, O., July 21—The Air Materiel Command and the Air Proving Command are attempting to determine the safest position and manner of ditching an aircraft in an emergency.

The Materiel Command disclosed that a B-17 was flown into the water near Eglin field June 6, the first of 10 planes to be dropped into the Gulf of Mexico during a 20-month series of tests.

The B-17, which was one of three drones flown through the atomic bomb cloud in tests at Bikini last year, carried no personnel when ditched. It was piloted from a "mother" plane.

Other tests are to be conducted later with the remaining two drones from Bikini and seven other B-17s from surplus stock.

The B-17 carried eight motion picture cameras and instruments which measured the impact shock and recorded the damage to the bottom of the plane as it hit the water.

STEEL PRICE JUMP BELIEVED CERTAIN

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 21—President Truman's plea to steelmakers to delay steel price increases is "not believed likely to alter" the industry's plans for rate boosts, the magazine Steel predicted today.

Reporting that extent to which steel prices would be increased still was uncertain last week, The magazine said some market spokesmen estimated that the overall raise would average $5 a ton, while others predicted a general increase of $3 a ton.

"Indications are no industry-wide increase will be effected prior to the end of this month at the earliest," said Steel. "Independent steelmakers are likely to await action by the United States Steel Corp. before moving, and steel corporation will not announce policy until its board of directors meets July 29."

The journal reported any estimates on the probable extent of increases were "in the realm of speculation," adding, "about all that could be said with any degree of certainly was that a price rise appeared to be in the making.

"Steel consumers are resigned to a steel increase. Some of them say they welcome a price boost as it means a larger supply of steel. However, demand continues as pressing as ever with little relief in sight. Consumers continue on meager rations and plant shutdowns for brief periods are common."

Recovering from the effects of the coal mining suspension, the national steel making rate increased 6½ points last week to 92.5 per cent of rated capacity, with the largest increases 23 points to 80 per cent at Youngstown and 14½ to 92 per cent at Cleveland.

tive of our foreign aid programs should be to restore a vigorous, stable and peaceful world economy."

In a capsule summary of national well-being, the President told congress:

"At midpoint in the year 1947, we have surpassed previous high records of civilian production, and are now producing goods and services at a rate of $25,000,000,000 annually.

"Recession Talk False"

"Month by month there has been talk of recession; month by month recession has failed to materialize.

"In June we reached a level of 60,000,000 jobs, regarded by many as impossible of attainment. Our standard of living is exceptionally high, and purchasing power has thus far been adequate to absorb completely the enormous production of American farms, mines and factories.

"Farm income has attained a record level. The financial position of business is strong.

"* * * management and labor have cooperated in maintaining industrial peace * * *." Productivity is on the increase."

But then Mr. Truman added this warning: that full employment at high prices is being sustained by the pent-up wartime demand, by extensive use of credit and savings, and by the huge excess of exports over imports.

"These are temporary props to our economic system. As they weaken, we shall need to make many basic readjustments to complete the transition to a permanently stable and maximum-level peacetime economy," he declared.

HOUSING SEEN GETTING WORSE

Survey Indicates Soaring Rate of Births Complicates Situation.

By The United Press

A survey of 20 American key cities showed today that the nation's housing situation is becoming worse in the face of a soaring birthrate.

The survey disclosed that in 14 of the 20 cities there was an actual shortage of 477,233 dwelling units. That figure did not include the thousands living in hotels, makeshift homes and old army barracks who are demanding better quarters.

Statistics of the National Health Institute in Washington showed that the nation's birthrate has jumped 9.5 per cent over 1939, when it was 17.3 per 1,000. Now it is 26.8 with 1,211,161 babies in the first four months of 1947.

Just a Trickle

The figures pointed up the urgency of the situation when set up alongside statistics on how many new dwellings are going up. Construction figures show only a trickle of construction as compared with pre-war building. Construction so far this year satisfied only about 15 per cent of the current shortage.

Further complicating the situation, few cities have enacted new rent control laws to meet the emergency. New York City's freezing hotel and lodging house rents as of June 30 may be followed in other communities.

The New York City law, just signed by Mayor William O'Dwyer, rolls back the rent rates for permanent guests in hotels, lodging houses and apartment hotels to the levels of June 30 when the old OPA regulations went off. To classify as a permanent guest, a person must have lived in the hotel or lodging house for 30 days prior to June 30.

Evictions Numerous

The survey showed that evictions were running into the thousands, and that the number appeared to be on the increase. Authorities in many of the cities said they saw no relief for years to come. One said "no chance of relief until the next depression."

Some optimism in the long range future was read into an announcement in Washington that home building in the first six months of 1947 had reached the highest rate in 20 years. It was reported that 362,800 new permanent homes were completed in the half year, a rate just under that of 1928 when 753,000 units were built. The 1946 shortage however, is far greater than in 1928 and the figures did little to ease the present situation, the survey showed. A congressional investigation was in prospect.

Bones of Earliest Dinosaurs Reported Found in New Mexico

By PAUL F. ELLIS
United Press Science Writer

NEW YORK, July 21—A group of scientists reported from the badlands of New Mexico today that they had struck a bonanza in their search for skeletons of the earliest dinosaurs which roamed earth over the land 200,000,000 years ago.

A week ago they found one skeleton of these small, but savage carnivorous creatures. Since then they have turned up five more perfect skeletons—and in addition have also found the bones of a pre-historic creature that resembled the modern crocodile.

The expedition, headed by Dr. Edwin H. Colbert, has met such success that a call for help was made to the American Museum of Natural History here. Two more scientists left immediately.

On "Ghost Ranch"

Dr. Colbert, curator of fossil reptiles at the museum, reported that the discoveries were made on the "ghost ranch" of Arthur N. Pack, north of Lindrith, N. M.

Dr. Colbert explained that it was called "ghost ranch" because seven horse thieves were hanged in that vicinity about 100 years ago, and legend says that the thieves' ghosts haunted the ranch buildings for years.

He also said the creatures had been identified as of the ceolophysis species in the theropoda order of earliest dinosaur. This creature was first identified by a few bone fragments in 1899 by Edward Drinker Cope, famed paleontologist, but not until the present discovery had a skull or complete skeleton been found.

Not Very Large

The animals stood a bare three feet high on their hind legs, and were six feet long with most of their length in their long, bony tail. The head was no larger than that of a wolfhound.

Most of the earth's crust was of red limestone when they roamed.

Dr. Colbert said skeletons had lain in a hard rock of sandy clay composition, and that the expedition is now at work cutting out great blocks weighing from 6 to 8 tons. These blocks will be coated with hard plastic shellac to protect the exposed fossil bones, and will be shipped to the museum laboratory here.

The ceolophysis is a representative of the type of dinosaurs that lived through the entire mesozoic age and it developed into the orders of dinosaurs which included the huge tyrannosaurus rex, and the largest of all—the brontosaurus, reaching a size of 80 feet in length and 60 tons in weight.

RUBBER WORKERS TO ASK PAY RAISE

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 21 — The CIO-United Rubber Workers international policy committee has decided to ask the rubber industry's "Big Four" — Goodyear, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber and Firestone—for another 1947 pay raise.

The committee blamed rising living costs for its decision yesterday to more from "Big Four," signers of the first wage contract this year among the nation's major producers.

In making its decision, the committee took advantage of a reopening clause in their contract, signed March 22, stipulating that wages could be renegotiated within four months. The action came only two days short of that period.

The rubber workers, said URW President L. S. Buckmaster, want boosts that will (a) meet the rise in living costs between January, 1947 and the time a new agreement is reached, added to (b) "whatever is necessary to equal other wage patterns."

He gave no specific estimate of the amount, but last March URW members got 11½ cents hourly raises, bringing them to a union-estimated basic wage rate of about $1.50 an hour. Big Four contracts set the standard for the rest of the industry.

The March agreement, signed less than 24 hours before a strike deadline, was considered a forerunner of industrial peece this year. Subsequent contracts in other industries provided slightly higher wage increases than those secured by the rubber workers.

"We trust the companies will recognize the justice of our case," said Buckmaster. "We hope that this matter can be settled expeditiously so that the harmonious relationships which have been built up between our union and the companies can be continued unimpaired."

The next move, he said, will be the filing of a former 15-day notice requesting wage renegotiations.

Management of the Big Four—all but U. S. Rubber are centered in Akron—had no comment.

TWO OHIOANS KILLED IN CRASH OF PLANE

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., July 21—James A. Person, 26, of Athens, O., and his brother-in-law, Paul N. Price, 36, were killed yesterday in the crash of their small plane after it had swooped low over Price's home at suburban Harbor View, O., to signal a safe return from a flight to Grand Rapids, Mich.

Witnesses said the L-2 Taylorcraft piloted by Person was banking to the left with its engine cut out about 200 feet above ground when it crashed about 200 feet from Price's home.

Mrs. Price, who had been watching the plane from the porch of her home, ran across the street to the plane and attempted to pull her husband from the wreckage.

Person flew the plane here Saturday from Athens and the two men took off Sunday for Grand Rapids.

AAF DESIGNING "SUPER" BOMB

Air Force May Test 42,000-Pound Missile Within Few Months.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 21—The Army air forces is developing and probably will test in the next few months a 42,000-pound super-size bomb.

So far as is known, this will be the largest standard-explosive—that is, non-atomic — missile ever made.

The weight of the bomb suggests that it is intended for use in such aircraft as the B-36, which is capable of carrying 36 tons of explosives and is equipped with a bomb bay of enormous dimensions.

The AAF had even larger bombs one of 100,000 pounds—under consideration and in the blueprint stage, but designers said privately today that a curtailed research program resulted in shelving these projects.

They described the 42,000-pounder as a "general purpose, blockbuster" type.

There was a hint over the weekend meanwhile, that the military may be looking into the future for an even more fearful weapon—an atomic bomb which when dropped from a high altitude might sink deep into the earth and produce a man-made quake.

An AAF announcement of forthcoming tests with deep-penetration bombs on a submarine assembly factory at Farge, Germany, referred specifically only to two standard-explosive bombs developed since war's end. They are the 25,000-pound "Amazon" and "Samson."

But the announcement concluded with this cryptic statement:

"With the introduction of atomic warfare in World War II, it is logical that the need for these specialized types of bombs may be even greater for future defense."

The extent to which deep penetration bombs can bore into the earth was demonstrated during the latter days of the war when Britain's Royal Air Force caved in a tunnel 135 feet below ground.

When Gen. George E. Oglethorpe, founder of Georgia, urged the inhabitants of Savannah to tidy up their city in 1739, he supplied bread and beer as encouragement

DEWEY FINDS WYOMING REPUBLICANS FAVOR TAFT

Triumphal Procession Hits Opposition in Western State.

By The Associated Press

EN ROUTE WITH DEWEY, July 21—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's campaign for the Republican presidential nomination encountered substantial Wyoming sentiment today for one of the New York governor's chief prospective rivals, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio.

Republican Senator Edward V. Robertson of Wyoming, at whose ranch Dewey was to be a guest late today, told a reporter that there apparently was considerable sentiment for both Dewey and Taft in Wyoming. He added the opinion that Taft had gained strength west of Nebraska as a result of enactment of the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Wyoming, which supported Dewey in 1944, has not made up its mind about 1948, Robertson indicated. In any event, he declared, "there won't be such a thing as turning the state over to one man. Wyoming is an independent state." It will have nine delegate votes at the G.O.P. national convention in Philadelphia next June.

Search for Wounded Convict Turns to Akron

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 21—A fireman's tip extended the search for wounded ex-convict Arthur Kirkorian to Akron today on the fourth day of his disappearance from Huron road hospital.

Fire Lieut. Jack Sammon told police a man closely resembling Kirkorian's description asked him yesterday morning for the best way to Akron.

"He walked with a limp," Sammon said. "He seemed to favor his right side too."

Kirkorian who is about 28, was wounded by a shotgun blast fired by Willowick police during his capture last Tuesday, police say he has a long criminal record.

Swarms of May Flies Halt 3 Freight Trains

By The Associated Press

PEACH BOTTOM, Pa., July 21—Swarms of May flies halted three freight trains pulled by 350-ton electric locomotives last night on the Pennsylvania railroad line between Port Deposit, Md., and Harrisburg, Pa.

Crews worked for several hours to clear away the millions of insects which blanketed the boxcars, clogged overhead power lines and short-circuited motors.

Three steam locomotives finally pushed two of the trains to Harrisburg and the other to Port Deposit.

May flies are known as ephemerida to the learned. Perspiring trainmen had other names for them last night.

Collision on Lima Ball Field Brings Double Knockout

(More about Ohio State league games on sports page)

By The Associated Press

LIMA, O., July 21—There was a double knockout in the first game of an Ohio State league doubleheader between Dayton and Lima last night.

After a Dayton batter popped to the Lima third baseman, the crowd was startled to see the Lima first baseman Sam Dabersa and Dayton outfielder Del Leslie lying on the ground near first base. Leslie out, and Dabersa stunned.

The players explained it this way: Dabersa turned to throw his glove on the ground, and Leslie came running out of the dougout heading for left field, while watching the play. The two men collided, Leslie striking his chin on Dabersa's elbow, knocking himself out, and crashing into Dabersa hard enough to stun him. Neither player was out of play because of the collision.

The accident occurred in the first half of the sixth inning of the first game.

The news agency said that Dutch air attacks had extended as far eastward as Malang, resort center approximately 400 miles from Batavia, where Dutch fighter planes were reported to have made two "fierce attacks on Boegis airfield.

Planes Strafe Trains

The agency also reported that Dutch aircraft had attacked a Republican army supply depot at Mageland, in central Java, and had strafed trains at two points in Republican territory.

Other low-flying Dutch planes were said to have dropped pamphlets at various points urging the civil population to remain calm, warning against any attempt at a "scorched earth" policy and calling upon civil authorities to assist their people by cooperating with the Dutch government.

COLUMBUS, O., July 21 — A possibility arose today that the Congregation Christian church, now headquartered in New York, would move to Columbus.

The Ohio Council of Churches said Dring Needham of Des Moines, attorney for the church's national headquarters committee, was surveying possible sites before attending a committee meeting in New York.

LIQUOR

January and July and still remain unable to make any adjustment you wanted in that inventory in a double turnover."

Jumps To Defense

Judge Sohngen jumped to his own defense on the basis of charges he had overstocked the department on "slow-moving" items, listing a number of brands of whiskies and rums purchased by the Herbert and Bricker administrations.

He quoted figures purporting to show that the total inventory when he took over the department Jan. 13, 1945, was 26 per cent whiskey, 28 per cent brandy, 34 per cent rum, seven per cent gin and two per cent cordials.

When he left the administration of Ohio's giant liquor operations, he said, the inventory by percentage showed 49 per cent whiskey, 18 per cent gin, 14 per cent cordials, 11 per cent rum, six per cent brandy and two per cent of other types.

"We assert that the operation of the department of liquor control by our administration was sound in every way from a business standpoint; earnest and sincere in its effort to eliminate the abuses in conection with the sale of intoxicating liquor, forthright, open and above board in connection with all its purchases and all dealings.

Stand On Record

"Mistakes in connection with such a vast operation are bound to occur. We make no apology, however, for our administration and stand on its record," he concluded.

Full analysis of other inquiries and documents in connection with his administration will be given as soon as they are received he declared.

He said he would confer later today with State Liquor Director Dale Duniform about procedure in disposing of surplus liquor stocks from an inventory of $40,000,000, about $23,000,000 above normal.

"Our chances of getting a profit from liquor this year are shot unless the industry cooperates," the governor said.

Similar situations prevail in other states, but Ohio is in the worst spot, Governor Herbert said he learned at the recent governors' conference at Salt Lake City.

"First thing is to get the stock moving," he commented.

Make This Home Recipe To Take Off Ugly Fat

It's simple. It's amazing how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it.

If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. You don't have to starve yourself; eat sensibly per instructions on bottle. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

800 Copies of Harding Quiver Reach School for Distribution

Some 800 copies of the 1947 Harding High school Quiver have arrived at the school, A. C. May, principal, announced today, and will be ready for distribution Tuesday from 1 to 3 p. m. and 7 to 9 p. m. in the evening. Students are requested to use the Church street entrance when entering the building. The yearbooks will be distributed from a room directly opposite Mr. May's office.

The books were due before the close of the school year but due to unavoidable delay at the printers they have just been completed.

Mark Anniversary

Miss Marian Conley, advisor for the Quiver, said the book is in commemoration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the school. In keeping with the diamond anniversary, the front cover of the book bears a picture of the first Marion High school and the front page has the pictures of Charles Fisher, formerly of Marion, now living at Richmond, Va., and the late Miss Elizabeth Ruehrmund of West Church street, who were the first two graduates of the Marion High school in 1872. The lower part is a panorama page of the pictures of all 1947 seniors.

Miss Conley said all drawings for the book were made by Harry Richardson, a member of the junior staff in 1946, who is now stationed in Okinawa with the armed forces.

Dedicated To Teacher

The book itself is dedicated to E. Paul Huffman, mathematics instructor of Harding. A portion of the dedication quotation written by Miss Margaret Huffman, director of Christian education of Epworth Methodist church, reads as follows: "a man loved and respected by all of us at Harding—his interest in each of us and in our futures have endeared him to us."

There is also a page in memory of the late Dr. Frank L. Thomas who served as a member of the school board for 11 years. Pictures of early Marion taken from an old album owned by Mrs. Conley's father are printed throughout the book. The book was edited by Miss Elizabeth Leeper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Leeper of 717 South Prospect street.

To see Christ, he pointed out it is necessary to safest sacrifice. Another requirement is purification of our lives, receiving forgiveness of sins, he declared. 2,810 SEE SHRINE GAME; CUBS SPLIT SUNDAY TWIN BILL

Watch Bruins Put On Typical Finish To Beat Giants, 4-3

By JIM DARBY

The Marion Cubs added their bit to make it a perfect Shrine benefit night with a 10-inning, 4-3 victory over the Springfield Giants Saturday night at Lincoln park. Staging one of their by now typical Hair-Breadth Harry finishes, the Bruins thrilled 2,810 fans.

Prior to the game the crowd was entertained by a marching band from Aladdin Temple at Columbus and a drill unit whose exhibition of close-order drill would make a Marine top kick think he belonged back in boot camp.

Following the baseball victory, the local Shrine club presented 15 minutes of fireworks display.

Hospital Gets Funds

Proceeds of the game will go to the Aladdin Temple Crippled Children's Hospital association.

Marion's left-handed Bert Flamini was credited with the win while Deno Cingolani of Springfield lost after enjoying an advantage through most of the contest.

Gil Goldstone got a life on Flamini's error to start Springfield's scoring, which was confined to the second inning.

He went to second on a wild pitch and to third as Carl Hosler singled. Flamini's single brought him in and Vince O'Grady's one-base knock scored Hosler.

Then O'Grady and Cingolani pulled a double steal with the Springfield pitcher's theft counting as a marker for the Giants.

Maxhimer Homers

Maxhimer retaliated in the Cub half of the second with a home run over the centerfield fence. Manager Nelson Burbrink walked in the sixth and scored on successive singles by Bob Shuford and Wally Rasmussen to pull the Cubs up closer.

Burbrink tripled in the eighth to set the stage for the run which knotted the score. As the third baseman stood with the ball after the throw-in, Cingolani—apparently believing he could assist in the hidden ball trick-toed the rubber. Burbrink walked home on the balk.

Springfield Manager Don Ramsey protested not wisely but too well and wound up on the outside of the park looking in—by special request of Umpire Jack Norris.

In the bottom of the tenth, Dwight Maxhimer tripled and Burbrink was purposely passed. Shuford cracked his third hit of the game and that was all.

RAYMAN FRITCH WINS CONTEST TO GUESS OSL ALL-STAR NINE

Three Entries Are Tied for Second Place Prize Tickets.

The title of the best baseball guesser in Marion went to Rayman Fritch, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Fritch of 264 Fries avenue. Rayman won first place in the contest to choose the Ohio State league All-Star team sponsored by The Star.

He will received two tickets good for the remainder of the 1947 season and the entire schedule of 1948.

Gene Miller of 131 Jefferson street, last year's winner tied for second place with two other Marion boys, Joe Thomas of 1059 East Center street and Dana Nuetzel of 1096 East Church street. The prize for second place a ticket good for two for the remainder of the season.

Fritch, who is a student at Edison Junior High and a basketball prospect there, plays baseball with one of the teams of the Junior Legion league. He is also a carrier boy for The Star. He attends games at Lincoln park very frequently. He is well informed on baseball and sports in general.

Rayman picked 14 of the 16 players on the All-Star selection chosen by the league sports writers. He missed on Morris Mikesell at shortstop and Bob Bartholomew in the outfield. In place of the two Zanesville performers Rayman preferred Vince O'Grady of Springfield and Red Richards of Richmond who is no longer with the Roses.

Rayman bases his choice of shortstops on the fact that O'Grady is hitting .350 while Mikesell has an average of only .214, a very logical method of reasoning. He thought O'Grady is just as good a fielder as Mikesell. He happened to see Richards of Richmond hit a pair of homers against Marion and thought the former Roses keystoner was an outfielder.

Miller missed on Slater, Mikesell and Bartholomew. He preferred O'Grady, Belcastro and Maisch.

Joe Thomas failed to agree with the writers on Mikesell, Bartholomew and Foster. He chose O'Grady, Belcik and Maisch instead. Nuetzel missed on Mikesell, Bartholomew and Slater and chose O'Grady, Belcastro and Maisch.

The tickets will be mailed from the Columbus office of Frank M. Colley, league president.

5,000 Attend Last Night Of Little Grand Program

The Little Grand Circuit races closed at the fairgrounds Saturday night with a 10-race, five stake program before an estimated attendance of 5,000 racing fans.

The big crowd Saturday night probably gave Racing Secretary Frank M. Foster a chance to break even on the 18-day program. With rain canceling eight of the scheduled racing days and stopping another in the middle of the card, it was feared an enormous amount of money might have been lost on the Little Grand Circuit and many feared it might hinder getting the program promoted next year.

In the closing program, Rose Spencer took both heats of the $1,500 2:14 trot sponsored by the Goodyear Co. The bay mare was driven by Chuck Boring and is owned by Walton and Pavey of Crawfordsville, Ind.

Argo Mite was also the best in both dashes of the 2:24 class trot sponsored by Jay H. Maish Co. He was driven by George Wright and is owned by Saunders Mills of Toledo.

Paul McPherson set the pace all the way to win both heats of the 2:17 class pace. He had Clarence Snyder in the sulky and is the property of O. L. Mears of Toledo.

Two horses split the Millard Hunt stake for 2-year-old pacers. Princess Chief took the first heat with Doc McMillen in the sulky. The Chief is owned by Herman L. Brickel of Jamestown, Zinnastone with a place in the first heat took top honors by winning the second dash. He had the veteran Gaoe Cartnal holding the reins and is owned by James Moody of Mechanicsburg.

Brownwood Lilly, owned by L. E. Brown of Scottsboro, Ala., and Sierra Frisco, owned by A. L. Baxter of Pontiac, Mich., split the purse in the 2:3 class pace, sponsored by the Crystal Bar and Grill. Both owners were presented a prize by the sponsors.

Legion Whips Shelby And Galion Juniors

Marion American Legion team won two games over the weekend, but they lost a catcher.

Shelby was nipped 3-2 at Lincoln park Saturday and Galion bowed 9-4 there yesterday.

Douglas Knoisley, regular Marion catcher, suffered a fractured little finger on his right hand in the second inning yesterday. The injury will probably keep him out for the rest of the season. He made one hit and scored one run before leaving the game.

Jack "Red" Owens Saturday's pitcher, who struck out 12 in allowing Shelby one hit, worked behind the plate after Knoisley was forced out. Dick Thomas will probably catch for the junior outfit in their remaining games. He has been playing shortstop.

Dick Roseberry, a brother of Joe and Max, who has been at shortstop in several games, will fill that post.

The weekend's wins were the Marion outfit's fourth and fifth. They have not been beaten, although they have been tied.

Jim Edgington, another brother of a professional ball player, pitched yesterday and Nelson Irvin, team coach, who has been worried about not having anyone, but Owens, to throw in the district tournament, has just about discarded the worry. Pitching his first game for the team, he allowed only four hits, struck out five, and gave only one free pass to first.

Marion got only three hits Saturday, bunching them in the fourth.

The 13-hit onslaught made against Galion was featured by Bill Mathias' two run homer in the first inning.

Win Afternoon Tilt, 7-5; Lose 12-Inning Night Marathon, 8-7

By DON C. BURTON

A run in the top half of the twelfth inning gave the Sp... Giants an 8-7 win over the Cubs in a night game last nig... the locals had won under old Sol in the regulation route 7...

The sunshine victory gave the Cubs the series three g... two. It was only the eighth loss... at home this year against 30 wins... for the locals.

Gasper Piverunas was the loser in the nightcap after he took over in the ninth as starter Jim Sabens was removed in the eighth to let Melvin Nelson fly out for him during a Marion rally.

Relief Pitcher Wins

Tony Byham, Giants southpaw, was the victor in the overtime contest after he relieved Bill McCarty in the eleventh. McCarty had taken over the burden from Joe Greco in the Marion eighth.

Ed Witowski went all the way in the afternoon and whipped the All-Star pitcher Tony West. It was the sixth win against a pair of defeats for bespectacled Ed who is one of the most improved pitchers in the league.

The Giants got the winning run in the twelfth off Piverunas on singles by Vince O'Grady, a sacrifice by Don Ramsey and singles by Bill Metral and Bill Scally.

With Springfield leading 7-3 in the eighth, the Cubs started another of their famous late inning finishes. Shuford walked and Burbrink was hit by a pitched ball and got to first after he showed Umpire Freck the spot on his foot. Wally Rasmussen then singled to center to score Shuford and Burbrink also scored when Scally threw the ball wild at third.

Cubs Tie Count

The Cubs tied the count at 7-all in the ninth.

John Smith got to second base when Metral threw his grounder past first Bobzean talked Smitty with a single and took second when Scally threw home, letting the tying run get to scoring position. Dwight Maxhimer then sent Bobzean over with a single over second. Shuford, Burbrink and Forbes flied out to leave the winning run in position.

The Cubs threatened in the 11th when Bobzean singled and Maxhimer walked but Bob Shuford, after failing to sacrifice, struck out Burbrink lined into a double play to end the inning.

In the afternoon contest the Giants got a run in the fourth and the Cubs matched it in the bottom half on a double by Smith and a single by Maxhimer.

The visitors went ahead again in the fifth with three runs on two walks and three hits. The Cubs got two of these back in the home half after two were out. Forbes singled and Witowski walked and then Hollingshead and Smith singled. The Giants took a 5-3 lead in the sixth but the Cubs again showed comeback ability, scoring four runs and putting the game on ice.

Burbrink Triples

With Maxhimer on first on Metral's error, Manager Burbrink tripled to right. After Shuford walked, Wally Rasmussen scored the skipper with a single and sent Shuford to third. Vince O'Grady took the thrown from the outfield and threw the ball into right field when he tried to get the speedy Rasmussen going to second on the throw. Both Shuford and Rasmussen scored on the wild throw.

The Cubs take to the road today and will not be at home again until after the All-Star game. The jaunt this week takes the locals to Muncie, Richmond and Lima, ending with a twin bill with the Terriers in Lima Sunday.

LUDINGTON, Mich July 21—The Army today marked up as a success its first mass life raft crossing of Lake Michigan, an 18-hour, 65-mile voyage completed despite rough winds and high seas

None of 11 motor-driven rubber rafts that started the trek from Sheboygan, Wis at 10 a m Saturday made port here Sunday, the last two arriving in Ludington harbor at 4 20 a m 18 hours and 20 minutes after shoving off

Lt W C Anderson of the survival branch of the army's aero-medical laboratory at Wright Field, O said the army considered the trip a "success"

The fleet made the run in a test of army survival and radio gear, sun lotions and life raft motors.

Two of the 11 starting craft failed to finish They dropped out and turned back a few miles out of Sheboygan one because of a leaky valve and one because of a seasick passenger.

She ain't what she used to be!
DO YOU FIND yourself humming that old tune these days, when you start paying your bills? Like the old gray mare, your dollars "ain't what they used to be." They don't go so far, and they don't do as much.
However, the next time you take a drink of water or fill the tub for a bath, you can think with satisfaction that at least one vital necessity isn't costing you a war-inflated price. For you are still getting the same amount of pure, dependable water for the same low price you paid before the war.
We are able to say this, too, in spite of the fact that our costs, like yours, have risen considerably during these wartime years.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

KATHARINE signaled me a question over Mary's shoulder in our own private code.

"Good news or bad?" her eyebrows quirked, and I lifted my eyes to the ceiling in a signal which meant "Everything all right."

"Nobody's going to stop you from using the telephone, Mary," Katharine then said in matter-of-fact tones. "Unless," she added, with what I knew was a purposeful nuance of mirth, "Dr. Twitchell wants to hold on to it. But, no. See! He's holding it out to you. Go ahead. Talk all you wish, but for Heaven's sake, sit down."

Dicky was at Mary's side before Katharine had finished speaking, and put her into a chair as Dr. Twitchell handed her the receiver.

But I noticed that the old physician did not move more than a few inches away from her chair, and the next instant Katharine unobstrusively was standing at Mary's other side. Dicky and I took the hint, and withdrew noiselessly to the center of the room, where we could lend a hand if necessary, and yet not get in the way of the nurse and the physician.

Mary was gripping the receiver so tightly that I could see the pink skin along her knuckles grow white. And her voice was hardly recognizable, so raucous was it.

"Aunt Harriet? Is this you? I knew you'd telephone when you got Aunt Madge's letter. Tell me quickly. Am I—"

Katharine Moves Quickly

I did not know Katharine could move so quickly, although I have watched her swift, deft movements for many years. But in the traditional trice, she was at Mary's side, with her hand over her patient's mouth.

"Don't you dare say that word!" she order. "This is a hotel switchboard, remember. Say nothing that can be understood. If you understand me, and will promise to be discreet, I will take away my hand. Shut your eyes for an instant if you will obey."

Mary's eyelids dropped instantly, Katharine removed her hand, and Mary began talking again.

"Guess I was talking out of turn, Aunt Harriet," she said. "But, please, please, tell me quickly. What was your answer to Auntie Madge's letter? Was it good news for me, or bad?"

I saw her face flush and pale alternately as she listened. But it went deadly white as she murmured, "Oh, thank you, merciful God!"

Then, as the receiver dropped from her nerveless hand, watchful Katharine caught her unconscious figure in her strong arms before she reached the floor in her sudden slump from her chair.

"Good God!" Dicky shouted. "Is she—"

But I had seen Dr. Twitchell's fingers slip to Mary's pulse, his eyes look keenly at her face, and his nod of assurance to Katharine, all in the space of half a second, and I put my fingers on my husband's lips in the same fashion by which Katharine had silenced Mary a minute before.

Fainted from Joy

"She's only fainted from sheer joy, I'm sure," I whispered. "Look! She's opening here eyes! Go to the phone and reassure Harriet—in a whisper, if you can."

He nodded and went to the telephone, taking up the dangling receiver.

"All right if I quiet my sister?" he asked, and as Dr. Twitchell nodded, I knew he could hear, as could, the high, agitated voice of Harriet Braithwaite shrilling questions into the mouthpiece of her own telephone.

"Tell her this is only a faint because of the good news. Say you will call her back in a little while. But get her off the telephone now."

Dicky gave his sister the required assurances, but a whisper was not necessary. Mary, struggling to rise from the recumbent position in which Katharine was holding her, shot voluble advice at him.

Perfectly All Right

"Tell Aunt Harriet I'm perfectly all right," she said. "Tell her she's the only one in the whole wide world whose word I'd take. Tell her she's saved my life and my reason, and I'd tell her so myself, only I'm not sure I could hold the received just this minute. And tell her—"

"Hold on, Brat," her uncle advised with a grin of relief at her. "Let me get in a word or two, or your Aunt Harriet will be passing out at her end of the line in Detroit.

"Yes, Harriet," he said. "She's perfectly all right. She just fainted from sheer relief, but she's fine now. Can't you hear her giving messages to you? Listen, and I'll give you a round-by-round play."

He swiftly delivered Mary's hectic messages, assured his sister that we would call her back a little later, and then hung up the receiver with a high of relief.

"How about it, Brat?" he asked. "Shall I carry you back to bed now? I imagine Dr. Twitchell would like to get you there."
